Sunset 8.09pm

Daily Programme.

From the Navigator.

Yesterday afternoon Queen Elizabeth maintained southerly courses in the Bay of Biscay along the French Coast, passing the cities of Nantes and La Rochelle. The Bay of Biscay has been the site of many famous naval engagements over the centuries. In 1592 the Spanish defeated an English fleet during the Battle of the Bay of Biscay. The Biscay campaign of June 1795 consisted of a series of manoeuvres and two battles fought between the British Channel Fleet and the French Atlantic Fleet off the Southern Coast of Brittany during the second year of the French Revolutionary Wars. This evening Queen Elizabeth will make her way to the southernmost point of the Bay.
