From the Navigator

Having departed Lisbon via the Tagus River yesterday evening, Queen Victoria then altered course to the north and transited the Roca traffic lane. We will also sail past the Berlengas Natural Reserve. The archipelago of Berlengas consists of 3 island groups: Berlenga Grande and nearby reefs, Estelas and Farilhões-Forçadas, all of them geologically different. Berlenga Grande, the main island, is 1,500 metres long, 800 metres wide, and 85 metres high. As this is a highly protected area, our course will diverge from the Portuguese coast during the day as we head towards Finisterre.
