

Daily Programme

Monday, 18 November 2024		Tonight: Gala Evening (Black & White)
Queen Anne	Voyage H429	Time zone: GMT
Sunrise 7.34am	Sunset 4.55pm

At sea, en route to Cádiz, Spain

From the Navigator

After letting go her lines last night, Queen Anne made her way out through Southampton water and into the Solent, where she disembarked her pilot and then continued out into the English Channel. Throughout the night Queen Anne followed a west-south-westerly course through the Channel, arriving today in the Bay of Biscay, where south-westerly courses were set towards the Spanish western coast. Queen Anne will cross the Bay of Biscay, which is notorious to yachtsmen and sailors. The depth of the Bay plays a significant role in its turbulent nature. At its deepest, the Bay of Biscay plunges to more than 15,000 feet. Deepwater currents, when met with shallower continental shelves, contribute to the Bay's infamous rough conditions. However, these currents make the Bay of Biscay rich with marine life and so, if you are out on deck today, keep a good look out for dolphins and whales.
